

Showing 114 to 127 of 231 entries

Your search term (e.g., adaptation) ...

☒ Affect

☒ Behavior

 Cognitive

☒ Desire

231
of 233 scales

of 233 scales

21.2
items (aver

items (average)

4,898
items (total)

items (total

This directory of acculturation scales is part of the publication The Migration Experience: A Conceptual Framework and Systematic Review of Psychological Acculturation (doi.org/10.5964/mig-experi-2021-001). As part of our systematic review of the literature on acculturation, we collected and analyzed scales that were used to measure 'psychological acculturation'. For all scales we extracted the publicly available scale construction (see 'View' column) and then coded whether the scales conceptualized psychological acculturation in terms of affect (e.g., feeling at home), behavior (e.g., language use), cognition (e.g., ethnic identification), and desire (e.g., independence wish).

Showing 114 to 127 of 231 entries☐ Filter by Experience Aspects

Desire

Number of Items

Items:

1. I use German mass media (TV, press, magazines, etc.).
2. In my leisure time, I speak Turkish.
3. I very much keep to the traditions of my home country.
4. I feel accepted by my German fellows.
5. I am not interested in friendship with Germans.
6. A partnership with a German woman is easily imaginable to me.
7. I feel stressed living in the German society.
8. I follow the political developments in Germany.
9. If I am in trouble, I talk to other Turks about it.
10. I feel accepted by the German society.
11. I do not have any German friends.
12. As time passed by, my religion became more and more relevant to me.
13. I desire to spend my life in Germany.
14. I use Turkish mass media (TV, press, magazines, etc.).
15. Most of my friends come from my home country.

Response:

0 = absolutely not
6 = absolutely

Sample:

Sampling strategy: student men
Host Country: Germany
Origin Country: Turkey

Life Domains:

- spirituality/religion
- home/family
- entertainment/media/news
- friends/aquaintances
- politics

OK